Catholic Social Services of Southern Nebraska Releases $200,000 to Help the Poor and Vulnerable During Coronavirus Outbreak

Catholic Social Services of Southern Nebraska (CSS) continues to serve the vulnerable of southern Nebraska. In response to the COVID-19 outbreak, CSS announced today that $200,000 will be released to help the poor and vulnerable in southern Nebraska, specifically to help those impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic needing help with rent, utilities, food and cash assistance.

“Jesus Christ Himself was born into poverty without a home, resources, or adequate shelter,” stated CSS Executive Director Rev. Justin Fulton. “We know people need help staying in their apartments, keeping their electricity on, and keeping food on the table. We are honored to help out with this $200,000 and hopeful the community might consider joining us to help out with more.”

Applicants near our four outreach offices may call at the below numbers to begin the application and screening process specifically for emergency cash assistance. CSS services all counties south of the Platte River in Nebraska through offices in Lincoln, Hastings, Imperial, and Auburn.
